It seems that many Americans also make New Year's resolutions. That said, some people denoted that the second Friday of January is "Quitter's Day", so perhaps many approach their resolutions with a lighthearted attitude.

At the beginning of the year, I set a goal to improve my English skills, and I've been sticking with it, making small efforts every day without giving up. Since November, I've been using a service called MLX to exchange languages with others. Right now, I'm enjoying chatting with Italian who is learning Japanese, mixing three languages—English, Japanese, and Italian—all together. In the near future, I'm hoping to learn the pronunciation of Italian songs from them.
